Location: Bloomington

Position Summary

The Indiana University School of Public Health-Bloomington (SPH-B) invites applications for a tenure-track/tenured faculty position in the Department of Kinesiology to serve within the sport management faculty group. Applicants at the associate or full professor rank are a priority, although all ranks are welcome to apply. We seek individuals passionate about our mission to promote sport, as a salient component of our social fabric, culture, and well-being, for all members of society through excellence in research, impactful teaching and mentoring, and meaningful service to the university, profession, and the community. This 10-month appointment would ideally start August 1, 2025, although an earlier or later start date is negotiable. Applications received by November 15, 2024, will be given full priority consideration, and applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Overview: A member of the prestigious Association of American Universities (AAU) since 1909, Indiana University Bloomington prides itself in offering outstanding academics grounded in contemporary educational offerings, world class research, and a vibrant campus life. The SPH-B, located in the heart of campus, is comprised of over 200 faculty across five departments and is one of the most diverse faculties of any school of public health in the nation, with 39% of current tenure-track/tenured faculty being scholars from traditionally underrepresented minority groups. In 2022 and 2023, Indiana University Bloomington was honored with the Higher Education Excellence in Diversity Award. Continuing the momentum of hiring over 40 outstanding tenure-track/tenured faculty over the last two years, the SPH-B is launching another wave of faculty recruitment. The Department of Kinesiology recently celebrated its 75th Anniversary and has consistently been highly ranked by the National Academy of Kinesiology. The Kinesiology faculty is a talented, productive, and collegial team, united by a shared interest in creating and translating knowledge in sport management, and human movement science and practice. Our sport management faculty conduct research within the primary areas of sport marketing, management, and communication. With Kinesiology being one of the largest departments at Indiana University Bloomington, our faculty educate, mentor, and serve ~2,900 students enrolled in our BS, MS, and PhD degree programs. The Department of Kinesiology has effective collaborations with other departments in the SPH-B and other units at Indiana University.

About Indiana University Bloomington: Founded in 1820 and considered the flagship, Indiana University Bloomington constantly strives to embody its mission to create, disseminate, preserve, and apply knowledge. It does so through its commitments to cutting-edge research, scholarship, arts, and creative activity; inspired and challenging undergraduate, graduate, professional, and lifelong educational programs; meaningful experiences outside the classroom; expansive global educational opportunities, while fostering a culturally diverse campus environment; first-rate library and museum collections; and far-reaching economic development and impact in the state and region. The Department of Kinesiology at Indiana University invites applicants who are skilled and experienced in the discipline of sport management for our position. Responsibilities include contributing to the overall academic excellence of our mission by developing and/or maintaining a robust research program; teaching and mentoring students at the undergraduate and/or graduate level as designated by the department chairperson; and actively providing service internally to the department, school, and university and externally to the profession and/or the community. Although all applicants with research expertise related to sport management will be considered, candidates with research expertise in AI and related analytics are especially encouraged to apply. This position is located on the Indiana University Bloomington campus, and successful candidates are expected to work on the Bloomington campus to allow full engagement with the department, school, campus, and community. Indiana University Bloomington bases its tenure and promotion recommendations upon performance in three areas including research, teaching, and service. All individuals hired through this initiative are expected to excel in research and provide strong performance in teaching and service.

Special Instructions

Application Procedure: Please provide a 1) curriculum vitae and 2) cover letter (no longer than 5 pages in length) summarizing your qualifications and interest in the position, including a research statement and overview of research experience, and a statement of teaching interest and experience particularly at the graduate level. If selected as a finalist, we will additionally request, at a minimum a) three references for the Assistant Professor rank and b) six references for Associate or Full Professor ranks. References will be contacted if you are selected for a finalist interview and/or job offer.

Interested candidates should submit applications at:
