The successful candidate will contribute to our efforts to create a welcoming and inclusive learning environment for students, foster robust, collaborative research, and engage in service activities supporting institutional goals.

Responsibilities: The primary responsibilities of the Instructor or Assistant Teaching Professor of Nursing and Simulation Laboratory Coordinator include:

Teaching: Candidates' primary responsibilities will include coordination and oversight of simulation and laboratory operations and instruction in nursing courses, including classroom and clinical teaching.

Research/Scholarship/Creative Accomplishments: The candidate is expected to engage in scholarly activities in their respective area of expertise.

Service: The candidate is expected to provide service across the College and University that promotes a commitment to the professional and regional community of the campus, including DEIB goals, such as committee work, community engagement, mentorship, and other contributions to the campus and the broader academic community.

Qualifications: To be considered for the Instructor or Assistant Teaching Professor of Nursing and Simulation Laboratory Coordinator, candidates should possess the following qualifications:

Education: An earned master's degree in nursing. Individuals with a master's degree will be considered at the rank of instructor, and individuals with a doctoral degree (e.g., DNP, PhD) will be considered at the rank of assistant teaching professor. An earned doctorate degree will be a condition of continued employment after the fifth year for a candidate hired as an instructor.

Expertise: The preferred candidate will demonstrate expertise in medical-surgical nursing education and practice, along with evidence of planning, implementing, and evaluating simulation-based learning experiences.

DEIB Commitment: Candidates should briefly describe their commitment to creating inclusive and supportive learning environments that consider the needs of Penn State Harrisburg's diverse student population.

Experience: Candidates will demonstrate a strong record of teaching and clinical practice in medical-surgical nursing with a specialization in pediatrics or advanced medical-surgical nursing, in addition to overseeing the administrative, curricular, and operational aspects of the Simulation Learning Laboratory.
